EX-SENATOR BENTON. The senatorial services of this distinguished gentleman have been most singularly remarkable; in length of time they have been unequalled by those of any other person. Mr. Clay first took a seat in the Senate (to fill a vacancy) at the second session of the 9th Congress, in December, 1806, and served till March 3d, 1807. He again served in 1810 and 1811, for an unexpired term ending March 3d, 1811. Though repeatedly chosen to the Senate since that period, the aggregate term of his service in that body is much less than that of Colonel Benton. Mr. King, of Alabama, the present President of the Senate, took his seat in the Senate upon the admission of Alabama into the Union in December, 1819, and served uninterruptedly till the spring of 1844, when he resigned, having been appointed minister to France by Tyler. Shortly after his return he was appointed to fill a vacancy, and subsequently was chosen for six years, which will expire March 5th, 1853. On the 4th of March, 1851, the aggregate of Mr. King's service in the Senate was less than that of Colonel Benton. Messrs. Clay and King are the only Senators, members of that body at the late session, who served previous to the election of Colonel Benton, or who were members of the Senate during the 17th Congress, which was the first after the admission of Missouri .

Missouri was admitted into the Union by the proclamation of the President of the United States, in August, 1821, and on the 4th of December following Mr. Benton took his seat in the Senate. Upon the classification of the Senators from that State, Col. Benton drew the ballot entitling him to the term ending March 3, 1827. Since that time he has been re-elected for four successive terms, the last ending on March 3, 1851; making an aggregate uninterrupted senatorial term of thirty years.

His term in the Senate has comprised fifteen Congresses: he has attended thirty-two regular sessions of Congress, and at six special sessions of the Senate. The aggregate number of days in which the Senate have been in session during his senatorial time has been four thousand eight hundred and three days, which, calculating a year at three hundred and sixty-five, would proved to be one of a lot of $1,200 so long give, as the time in which he has been actually engaged in legislation, thirteen years and fiftyeight days.

During his time he has seen the Senate presided over by seven persons holding the office of Vice President, and by eleven different Senators chosen from time to time as President pro tem. He was never chosen as presiding officer. He has voted upon the admission of seven new States, including Texas, and has witnessed the increase of the number of Senators from forty-

Including those who were Senators of the 17th Congress, at the first session of which he first attended, and those of the last Congress, he has witnessed the attendance of no less than two hundred and ninety different individuals who have been chosen or appointed as Senators from the several States within that time; that is to say, from Maine 12; New Hampshire 14; Massachusetts 10; Rhode Island 9; Connecticut 13; Vermont 8; New York 10; New Jersey 8; Pennsylvania 11; Delaware 11; Maryland 13; Virginia 14; North Carolina 10; South Carolina 13; Georgia 13; Kentucky 9; Tennessee 11: Ohio 11: Louisiana 13: Indiana 10: Alabama 12; Mississippi 14; Illinois 13; Arkansas 5; Michigan 7; Florida 3; Texas 2; Missouri (including himself) 5; Iowa 2; Wisconsin 2; and California 2.

Of those who have been members of the Senate during his service in that body, four have since become Presidents of the United States; five Vice Presidents; two Judges of the Supreme Court; nine Secretaries of State; six Secretaries of the Treasury; seven Secretaries of War; six Secretaries of the Navy; one Secretary of the Interior; one Postmaster General, and four Attorneys General. Besides these, many who have filled the post of Senator during his term have filled foreign missions and other important posts. Of those chosen Senators during the term of Colonel Benton, no less than thirty-five died while holding the office of Sena-

Whether Colonel Benton should ever again be chosen to the Senate or not, his unexampled and distinguished career in that body can never be forgotten: his name and his acts as a legisupon our nation's history, and they will stand forth in all their strength so long as the nation exists. His reputation as an orator and his fidelity as a representative are too fresh in the minds of all to need any comments upon them day, 26th instant. at this time.

SUPERINTENDENT OF THE POST OFFICE DE-PARTMENT.-We learn, upon inquiry, that Mr. Horatio King has been appointed, by the Postmaster General, Superintendent of the General Post Office Department, to take effect from the 1st of July next, at which time the resignation of J. Downer, esq., is to take effect. Mr. King is the corresponding clerk for the foreign mails and the California and Oregon inland service, at a regular salary of $1,400, to which desk he was assigned by Judge Hall, on the 1st of January last, and this additional compensation has been given to him by Judge Hall because of his worth and ability as an accomplished, faithful, and reliable clerk. The order was intended to take effect on the 1st of May; but learning that Mr. Downer wished to remain until the 1st of July, Mr. King not only promptly expressed his willingness, but requested, if agreeable to the Postmaster General, that the order should be made to take effect at the last-named date. It is desired that the superintendency should be in the hands of some one at the Department.

THE MISER'S FOLLY .- The West Chester Record tells the story of a suspicious-looking half dollar, lately in the possession of the editor. It was coined in 1807, but looked as bright and shiny as if it had come fresh from the mint. It hoarded by a resident of that county. The old man's property lately fell into the hands of his heirs, who are distributing the carefully kept and curious half dollars for public inspec-

But the old gentleman would probably not have derived from its increase so much pleasure as he felt at knowing that his wealth was within his own clutches.

A SHREWD MAN .- A friend of ours has a visiter who comes daily to his store. This visiter is rich, and very intellectual, for his daily call has been to read the American Telegraph. At every visit he used to say-"It's a clever paper, but I don't think it can succeed in Washington." He yesterday repeated his remark, when our friend replied:

"You are a false prophet, sir: it is success any other paper published here. It is read by everybody, and is already self-sustained."

> NATIONAL HALL. - Miss Bennett's benefit last night was by no means beneficial to her, we regret to say. She played like an angel, and ities bill passed its second reading. Mr. Taylor sustained her nobly. They were a host in themselves; and it was lucky for them. for they had no other host to help them. Excepting Mrs. Cappell and Mr. Ryan, there was no one else whose memory is worthy of embalming. The audience would have applauded Miss Bennett and Mr. Taylor to the skies, if there had been enough of them to raise a tolerable breeze. The dancing between the pieces was done a la Sulph, of course. In the Loan of a Lover, Miss Bennett delighted every one; Mr. Ryan entitled himself to every body's commendation and thanks; Mrs. Cappell, as ever, acted cleverly; and those who "went on" for the other charac ters should have stayed off for ever and a day.

But the Booths and Mrs. Jones appear tonight in the Merchant of Venice, and so there is something clever in prospect.

ELECTRICITY A PURIFIER .- "Tis an ill wind that blows nobody good," and one of the benefits of last night's thunder-storm was, that the watch-house was without a tenant this morning.

A colored woman was passing our office this morning, with a pine plank on her head, when Bill Simmons, to our surprise, uttered his abhorrence of her. Why do you swear at the poor woman? asked a bystander. Because, said Bill, ful. It circulates as extensively in this city as I like everything fair and above-board. Our city is in a stir and sparkle from one end to the other. The flags newspaper establishments and shipping, and every body is on the look-out for the ceremoies of the day, which are about to commence. The steamboat Erie left for Amboy at 10 o'clock to meet the distinguished guests, and her return is expected in the course of half an hour. The military companies assembled in the Park about 11 o'clock and formed in order, after which they marched to the Battery. The streets are crowded with thousands of spectators, and the grand reception procession promises to be one of the most brilliant we have witnessed for some time past.

Later .- The Arrival .- The steamboat Erie, containing the President and Secretaries Web-ster, Graham, Crittenden, and Hall, reached this city about 2 o'clock this afternoon. As she came up the bay she was saluted by cannon from Ellis's Island and Governor's Island, and on the boat touching at Castle Garden a salute was fired from the Battery, under the direction of Gen. Morris. After the reception at Castle Garden, the President proceeded to review the troops drawn up on the Battery. The procession is about starting as we go to press.
